Mother Bowman, 82, Revered by Friends

Mrs. W. O. Bowman, aged 82, contributed the following beautifully written paragraph to The Terminal's Forum column, the philosophy inspired therein being suggested by a pessimistic lady visitor who was so sad, and had so much trouble. Mrs. Bowman resides with her aged husband at Macdonald and Second. She writes a fine hand, the spelling and punctuation proving she is a woman of intellect and refinement, happy and girlish. Her little sermon follows: "Better be credulous of good than ever ready to believe evil. It is better to talk of nothing but the fashions than to smirch reputations and inflict those wordy stabs at character against which there is no defense. Every one should cultivate honorable and sincere traits which do not grow in an atmosphere of gossip and scandal any more than violets will bloom in an atmosphere of corroding acids."

J. A. Elston Praises Richmond-Albany Site

Congressman J. A. Elston has this to say in favor of the naval base for the east bay cities of Richmond, Albany and Berkeley.

"The naval base at Albany has all the requirements for an ideal site. Admiral Pond, the best authority obtainable, a man who has gathered much valuable data in the matter of a naval base in San Francisco Bay says the Albany site is the only logical location for the base.

"I am greatly interested in this improvement, and realize the value it will be to the east bay cities of Richmond, Albany and Berkeley. You are aware of the bill introduced by me, which has become a law, providing for a commission of five naval experts whose duties are to select a location in San Francisco bay for a naval base. With recommendations of Admiral Pond, and the assistance of several local citizens of the east bay cities, Albany is far in the lead, and in my opinion has already won the prize."

Good fellowship prevails among the Stags and with harmony and interest, Richmond has a fraternal order to be proud of.

Mr. Hill is a brother of Mrs. G. W. Ryan, and will spend a few days visiting relatives and friends in Richmond and other bay cities during September.

YOU COULD HAVE DONE BETTER AT THE RICHMOND TERMINAL

Well, What'd Ye Know About This?

Did you hear about it? Did we HEAR about it? We did. And saw part of it, but not all of it—seven innings was sufficient. It was a plenty.

Never again will those Martins from Martinez repeat what they did Sunday to Richmond.

You see, Pop Arlett was right, or ripe—at least, he only permitted two little hits, just for diversion.

But next Sunday this story will be different. It will tell how Richmond walked on the neck of the Martinez team and made those bushers look like 2 1/4 cents.

Richmond must have the series for advertising purposes.

San Jose Chickens Full of Pinfeathers

Two of Albany's Elks motored to Saratoga on Sunday where a concert by the Albany band entertained inmates at the Oak Hollows' home. On the way down they passed Milpitas where prize poultry attracted their attention, and a chicken dinner was ordered at San Jose. The fowl was served, but Pope asked the waiter for a razor with which to shave his bird. Nickerson smiled, the waiter made a Grecian speech, but the chicken failed to receive a tonsorial dressing because Pope's stomach couldn't stand tickling with a feather.

Mr. Gorman, who has taken over the slaughter house formerly conducted by Mr. Vincent, has made some much needed improvements by remodeling and making the plant sanitary in every detail. East Richmond Is Scene of Activity

San Francisco.....	$287,323,010

Street Paving Going Ahead; Homes Building.

Activities at 23d and Macdonald are noticeable from all points of the compass, and passersby in the street cars and automobiles are amazed at the wonderful development of the East Macdonald avenue territory.

The paving of 23d street north is under way and will soon be completed. This fine avenue when improved will open up a beautiful residence district, enhancing values, and proving beyond a doubt the prediction that 23d street is destined to become one of the busy cross-town arteries.

The Richmond high and the Grant schools, two high class educational structures are here, besides the new city hall, which will be the nucleus of a thriving business as well as residential center.

The landscape plans for the opening and subdivision of the old Nicholl farm south of Macdonald and east of 23d street, are a revelation in city beautifying.

Burg Bros., the enterprising and wide awake realty men, deserve much credit for the development and improvement of the eastern portion of the city.

SHACKLETON CREW SAVED IN ANTARCTIC

Explorer Brings Men Left on Elephant Island in Cave to Punta Arenas

Punta Arenas, Chile.—Sir Ernest H. Shackleton returned here last Sunday with the members of his Antarctic expedition, whom he rescued and who had been marooned on Elephant Island. The men were all in good condition.

On April 24 Shackleton set out from Elephant Island in a twenty-two foot boat, fitted with sledge runners, leaving twenty-two men of his expedition behind him. The men he left had five weeks' provisions. Their only shelter was an ice cave. Night and day gales swept the bleak shores, so that any one leaving the shelter had to crawl on hands and knees.

Yet those who were to stay thought theirs would be the longer lives. Before the boat's crew was a stretch of 750 miles of Antarctic ocean, on which cruised great ice packs. It seemed impossible that the fragile craft should survive the voyage.

It was done. Heavy with ice and filled with haggard men, so frostbitten that few of them could crawl up the beach, Shackleton's boat made the whaling station at South Georgia. As soon as he had reached civilization the commander set about the rescue of his comrades.

As the weeks passed and ship after ship was driven back, crippled, Shackleton's fear grew. Inspired by hope, he believed his companions might have survived, but they had every reason to think their commander's frail boat had been swamped or crushed. No word could reach them that rescue parties were on the way.

The first relief expedition set out under Captain Thomas in a whaler on May 26, even before Shackleton had reached the Falkland Islands. The bitter weather which had wrecked the original expedition and sent the seals migrating northward in vast herds still prevailed.

Battered by tremendous seas and racked by ice, Captain Thomas deemed himself lucky to get his sturdy vessel back into port.

Shackleton himself took charge of the next attempts.

STATE FAIR SWEEP BY $200,000 FIRE

Agricultural Building, Annex and Concessions Are Destroyed

Sacramento.—For the first time in the sixty-odd years of State fairs in California a serious fire broke out Sunday night shortly after 9:15 o'clock and totally destroyed the Agricultural building, the main structure in the grounds. The annex and all the concessions on the midway were also destroyed.

For three hours the blaze raged, while 30,000 persons looked on at the excitement of moving out the live stock and race horses, preparations that were going on when it looked as if other buildings would go in the conflagration.

The damage suffered is estimated by President John M. Perry and other officials of the State Fair at $200,000. The Agricultural building was constructed in 1909 at a cost of $60,000. Since then $15,000 improvements have been added.

The intrinsic cost of the exhibits, which were gathered and placed with much care and labor, add greatly to the total of the loss. Everything is a total loss, as the State does not insure any of its buildings.

Among the serious losses is the model of the Donner monument, just completed by Sculptor J. MacLerie at a cost of $20,000. This was made for the Native Sons to mark the spot on Donner lake where the Donner party perished in 1846.

The fire started in a moving picture tent in the annex to the Agricultural building.

Mrs. Rambaud's first husband died in Alameda about three years ago.

EIGHT-HOUR BILL SIGNED BY WILSON

Peace Depends on Outcome of Proposed Test of Law's Constitutionality

Washington.—The Adamson eight-hour day bill, exacted from Congress last week by the railroad brotherhoods as the price of calling off the Nation-wide strike ordered for last Monday, was signed by President Wilson last Sunday in his private car at the Union station, where he stopped on his way from Shadow Lawn, N. J., to Hodgenville, Ky. That there may be no question as to the legality of the measure as a result of it having been signed on Sunday the President will affix his signature again upon his return to Washington next Tuesday.

How long peace shall reign as a result of the bill is dependent upon developments in the proposed test of the constitutionality of the act. Should the railroads take no action, but await the beginning of an investigation of the workings of the eight-hour day by the special commission for which the measure provides, the brotherhoods will remain inactive.

The employees' leaders declare, however, that should the law be held unconstitutional and the railroads attempt to restore the ten-hour day on their lines a strike will follow promptly.

None of the brotherhood leaders witnessed the signing of the bill. They had expected, according to tentative arrangements made by Secretary Wilson, to be present, but the President decided to attend to the business at the railroad station.

The four pens used by the President in signing the bill—one for each syllable of his name—will be presented to the four brotherhood heads, A. B. Garrettson, W. G. Lee, W. S. Carter and W. S. Stone, after being used for re-signing the bill on Tuesday.

San Diego.—Believing firmly in the innocence of Rev. Amvi C. Wright, who was arrested last week on a charge of committing a statutory offense against fourteen-year-old Barbara Beardsley, the members of the First Congregational Church at Ramona arose en masse at the conclusion of services Sunday morning and voted to return the accused pastor to his pulpit.

San Francisco.—The new Market street lighting system, which is to transform that thoroughfare into a veritable "path of gold," is being rushed to completion by a corps of workmen, while plans are progressing fast for the illumination carnival, to be held October 4 and 5 in celebration of the new triumph of street illumination.

Under the direction of W. D'Arcy Ryan, who devised the lighting system especially for San Francisco, the arc standards are being put into place and the decorative lamps installed. Many of the new arc standards have been completed.

The "path of gold" will gleam for the first time on Wednesday evening, October 4, when the carnival will open to celebrate that achievement, making Market street the best-lighted street in the world.

Shortly after the lights have been turned on, an electrical pageant, the first event of the carnival, will move over Market street. It will be a long line of brilliant floats, more beautiful than anything of the kind ever seen in San Francisco.

In addition to the new lights, Market street will be illuminated by festoons of varicolored incandescents strung from curb to curb.

The whole street will be in holiday dress, as will all of the downtown district. Flags will fly, while bunting and evergreens will complete the decorative scheme.

From every section of California assurances are coming to the general committee that the city will be crowded with visitors for home-coming week, which begins Monday, October 2, continuing until the end of the carnival.

Oakland.—Death claimed the tenth victim of the bomb outrage of July 22 when Jerry McCarty, a veteran of the Grand Army of the Republic, died Sunday night in Providence Hospital. McCarty was 75 years old.

The Reason.

"Odd, isn't it, that age is a recommendation in wine and a drawback in women?"

"Not at all. You can put it down in the one, but you have to put up with it in the other."

REAL LIFE ROMANCE

FRANK OF FATE THAT RESULTED IN HAPPY MARRIAGE.

She Was the "Other Girl" and He the Only "Good Looking" in the Regiment Which Was Embarking for War.

The scene of the first chapter of this romance is laid in a city on the western coast, a seaport from whose harbor there sailed during the year of the Spanish-American war many transports carrying to the Philippines troops of navy and gallant soldiers most politely generous with their brass buttons.

On one of these occasions two young girls, thirsting for adventure, fared forth, armed with a kodak. Snapshots were taken of the soldiers marching down one of the principal streets from the train to the wharf, but a sad melancholy settled down upon the pair when they were forced to admit that these men were, Oh! so ordinary looking, not nearly so handsome as some of the regiments had been.

However, to vary the dull monotony which the whole episode was gradually assuming, they amused themselves while the men were boarding the ship in endeavoring to pick out the really good-looking one. And they did—one, and one only. But he, being by that time on the upper deck, was quite unobtainable, so all the joy that could be extracted from an afternoon which had given such promise was the pleasure of waving good-by to him as the ship sailed away.

But what was their surprise when the snapshots of the marching soldiers were printed to discover that their "good-looking man" appeared in one of them. The pictures were soon pasted into a book and the incident apparently closed.

The scene of the second and closing chapter is now shifted to a town about ten years later.

One of the two girls was living in this town. She was a schoolteacher. At a social gathering she met a young man who afterward called on her.

In the course of conversation she gave the name of her former home, and the young man remarked that he had been in that city just twice, once when he embarked with his regiment bound for the Philippines and once when he was on his way back after the war.

Of course, the old book of kodak views was promptly unearthed, and the girl was not a little surprised when he greeted the picture of the "good-looking man" with the rapturous announcement that it was his old comrade, Jack —, who resided in that very town, but was at that time away on his vacation.

When he returned he would bring him around, if he might, to see the pictures, in which he was able to distinguish many of his former friends. Jack came, he saw, he conquered, with the usual happy ending. I am and was the other girl.—Chicago Tribune.

Eye Protection at Movies.

Physicians are constantly advising patrons of the movies to protect their eyes. A writer in the Journal of the American Medical Association tells how it may be done.

"The progress made in the character of subjects presented in the movies today makes it desirable for all inquiring people to at least attend occasionally," he says. "Annoying after-effects on the eyes of many prevent them from enjoying the social diversion, and often the educational advantages thus derived. The great majority of those who suffer from eye strain after watching moving pictures can find much, if not complete, relief in perfectly fitted glasses. The picture may not be quite so sharp, but this is more than compensated for by the increased comfort."

"For those with very sensitive eyes a colored glass, either amber, yellowish green or amethyst, may be necessary to give complete relief. There have been put on the market recently several varieties of colored glass, each of which has some advantages, so that some suitable color can usually be secured. A subdued light in the theater is much less irritating than when the only light visible comes from the screen. It is also advisable to avoid sitting in a place where it is necessary to look upward, as the additional strain becomes very tiresome, and frequently leaves a headache."

Freeze Feet in Midsummer.

How 150 Italian infantrymen were inviolated by freezing their feet in mid-summer was told by a passenger arriving at New York on the French liner La Touraine.

The men were members of a battalion of Alpine Infantry, and had gone to a point far above the snow line in an attempt to surprise an Austrian force that in no other manner could be ousted from its position. They had been carefully drilled in walking on all fours and acting the parts of goats and sheep.

Two days after leaving camp remnants of the command began to return. They failed in their undertaking because of a terrific storm and because sharp pieces of ice tore their flannel leggings and exposed their feet.

Prophets and Submarines.

"The U-boats of unbelief," says Rev. John Fox of the New York presbytery, "have fired another torpedo at the Bible." Be that as it may, Jonah's whale was the first to operate under the water and derive a prophet therefrom.—Judge.

VISIT SACRED SPOT

DAUGHTER OF LIVINGSTONE SEES PLACE WHERE HE DIED.

Brick Memorial Has Been Erected in Inclosure Where the Heart of the Great Explorer and Missionary Was Buried.

Mrs. Livingstone Wilson, only surviving child of Dr. David Livingstone, the explorer, recently made a journey to Old Chitambo, where her father's heart was buried. Old Chitambo is north-east of Rhodesia, a cleared space in the heart of the bush, and it took over a month to reach it from Capetown. At New Chitambo, which is 55 miles farther on, Mrs. Wilson was going to stay with her son, who is a medical missionary, and her daughter, who is a nurse.

At the Victoria falls, discovered by her father, she secured a photograph showing the point from which he caught the first glimpse of this great rush of water. At Broken Hill she was met by her daughter and later by her son, and they trekked to Chitambo with 60 carriers, a native teacher acting as interpreter.

In the native villages as they passed through they excited much interest, says the London Times. In one their hair aroused the curiosity of the native women, and when they let it down to show them the women ran shrieking away, fearing it was snakes growing out of their heads. At another native village the chief brought all the sick natives that Doctor Wilson might prescribe for them, but he made some difficulties by insisting on taking a dose of every medicine which was ordered for his people. The narrow canoes, the unsafe native bridges of stocks, the thwarts of which had been eaten by white ants, and the fear of mudholes and crocodiles when the travelers were carried in hammocks across the rivers made the journey adventurous.

At Old Chitambo an old chief called Chitend, from another village, claimed that it was in his mother's hut that Doctor Livingstone died, and four other old men, who refused to believe that Mrs. Wilson was Doctor Livingstone's daughter—"He had no child with him; he always came alone," they said—remembered him and told of him through the interpreter. The discrepancies between their version and that of the biographers were, Mrs. Wilson said, of great interest. The old chief's claim that Doctor Livingstone died in his mother's hut arose from the fact that, while his followers had gone ahead to build him a grass hut, he became so ill that he had to rest under the eaves of a native hut, dying afterward in the grass one that had been built for him.

The old men declared that they remembered his followers building a stockade around the hut while they embalmed the body in salt and brandy, burying the heart under a great tree, at the other side of which old Chitambo, the chief of the village, who had had a great respect for the explorer, was afterward buried. The explorer's body, as is well known, was borne a thousand miles through the forest to be sent to England by his faithful native followers, Jacob Wainwright, the best-known of these, had asked the old chief to keep the grass always burned close around the tree at Chitambo, so that it might escape the dangers of forest fires.

Afterward the tree was struck by lightning, and the present memorial, in sloping brick, with a cross at the summit—the slope being made to prevent elephants brushing their trunks against it—was erected in the bush with an avenue cleared in front of it. Here was placed a book on which big game hunters and explorers who penetrated thus far might note their names.

World's Greatest Banana Zone.

Costa Rica, the greatest banana country of the western hemisphere, produces more bunches of the fruit of the Musa Sapientum than any other single country on the American continent. It exports from 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 bunches. Nearly 800 square miles of land are included in the banana zone, though not all this tract is under cultivation. During the past few years there seems to be a falling off in the yield of the banana, due partly to a disease whose origin and elimination are yet unsolved problems, although the subject of much scientific study and investigation. Nevertheless new plantations are being made at various points in the fruit districts, while much of the abandoned lands are being planted in cacao. This latter product is thriving splendidly.

Last Word in Thrift.

The proverbial thrift of wealthy New Yorkers has been thwarted by the courts. Two men who were executors of a will, covering a large estate, were under that will trustees of about $400,000. When they turned in their account they charged the regular commission for the difficult and costly labor of handing over to themselves the sum they were to take care of. Certain heirs, equally thrifty, entered a protest and the courts have ruled that a man isn't entitled to pay for handing himself what he already has.

Prophets and Submarines.

"The U-boats of unbelief," says Rev. John Fox of the New York presbytery, "have fired another torpedo at the Bible." Be that as it may, Jonah's whale was the first to operate under the water and derive a prophet therefrom.—Judge.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

NEW MOLE HOME.

"Mr. Mole was going to get married," said Daddy, "and he wanted to build a fine, fine home for the new Mrs. Mole. So he went forth into the nearest meadow he could find, and there, just at the end of it, near an old fence, Mr. Mole started to burrow into the ground.

"You know the Moles live underground almost all of the time, and there make their homes. Just near the fence Mr. Mole began to dig and dig. First of all he made a long, long tunnel, a funny underground passage which he called the Drive-Way of his Home!

"Of course the callers of Mr. and Mrs. Mole could hardly drive along this tunnel, but they could run and scamper along, and they liked to call it by a big name like Drive-Way.

"And after the long, long tunnel Mr. Mole started in to make a fine House out of the earth. He made lovely rooms, one for Mrs. Mole, one for himself, one for the little Mole who was to do the cooking and housekeeping and several for guests. For, as you can imagine, Mr. Mole was very fond of company. In addition to all this Mr. Mole built a very fine picture gallery—made in tiers of earth and mud—long rows and rows of it. On these he put pictures of his family which he made out of earth, too. Of course, Mr. Mole made every member of his family look just alike, but that didn't make any difference. The Moles are not very fussy if their pictures aren't very well taken, for they can't bother to look at pictures much of the time.

"You see their eyes are very small and they like to look at things more worth while—such as food and corn starting to grow in the ground and all the things the Farmers plant. They love farms you know, where wonderful vegetables are planted deep down in the earth. They are very apt to burrow along and make paths so they can walk to a farm and have a feast.

"But I must tell you more about Mr. Mole's new home. The very last thing he did was to build a beautiful throne in the picture gallery for Mrs. Mole.

"At last it was time for her to come to her new Home and Mr. Mole had invited their friends and cousins, the Cricket Moles, to come, too. These cousins have very strangely shaped front legs with which they burrow homes just like the regular Moles, and so they are considered relations.

"Here we all are," said Mrs. Mole, and she blinked her very small eyes, while all the other Moles blinked their tiny eyes, too, and looked about them. Through the Drive-Way they ran until they came to the House with all the beautiful rooms.

"The room Mr. Mole took them to last was the picture gallery, where Mrs. Mole sat on the throne in honor of her wedding day, and the little Mole, who cooked, brought out some of the delicious stewed vegetables she had made for the wedding feast.

"You should have heard the Moles as they looked at the pictures. They thought every picture was one of their own relatives.

"One Mole would say: 'Why, there's Mamma,' and another would say: 'Why, no, that's not your Mamma, that's my Papa.' However, they didn't get in the least angry about the pictures—in fact, they thought it very clever of Mr. Mole to make pictures which looked like all their relations at the same time.

"But you haven't noticed my wedding dress," said Mrs. Mole. 'I think my new Home is S-C-R-U-M-P-T-I-O-U-S, which means beautiful in case any of you little Moles don't understand the word I've said in honor of the day. And now that you've all admired my Home, please admire my dress.'

"For the first time the Moles noticed that Mrs. Mole had attached to her tiny ears little earrings made of mud with a red berry in each, and she wore a necklace to match. Her dress was of dull oak leaves which Mrs. Mole had saved for a whole year to wear on her wedding day.

"You're a handsome Mole," said Mr. Mole, "and I'm so proud you're to share this Home I've made, and all the other Moles grined and ate more and more of the vegetable wedding feast to show what a good time they were having."

Turning Night Into Day Robs the Children of the Sleep They Need

By SAMUEL G. DIXON, M. D.
Commissioner of Health of Pennsylvania

The present habit of turning night into day in our highly illuminated towns, with all sorts of exciting

entertainment,

keeps the nerves

keyed up and up-

sets the equilibrium.

Children especially are apt to suffer from late

hours and consequent lack of sleep. For the latter part of the night, the regular hours of sleep are of the utmost importance in establishing a sturdy constitution in childhood.

With adults, irregularity and short hours of sleep are often a factor which predisposes to ill health. There are exceptions to this as to all rules. Occasional one will find an individual who has an unusual capacity for work with less than the ordinary amount of rest, but for the ordinary man or woman

this would end disastrously.

Permitting children to remain up late is a strain on their nervous systems which, while it may not be immediately apparent, is bound to exert a detrimental influence in the long run. Oftentimes the ill effects are perfectly apparent to the intelligent observer.

Irritability and any of the train of evils which result from an overtaxed nervous system may result from continually robbing the child of sleep. A regular bed time should be set for children according to their age, ranging from six o'clock for babies to eight o'clock for children of eight or nine, and this should be regularly adhered to. This is a matter of the utmost importance in establishing a sturdy constitution in childhood.

Albany News Notes.

The Albany theatre has been enlarged. Albany grows.

A big celebration will be given by the Italian colony the 20th.

Don't forget the St. Ambrose fair. Keep it in mind.

Marshal John Glavinovich has not recovered sufficiently from his hurt to use the injured arm.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Scheik celebrated their 17th wedding anniversary Tuesday. They were entertained and congratulated by their friends, among the latter the Albany Argus.

Jack Brown, it is said, vacated his glass cage which is located on the roof of his house Sunday night when the thunder pealed and the lightning flashed. Jack says he "stood fire," but others state he dropped to terra firma.

Mrs. Clark, a niece of Mrs. Tenney of Kains ave., left Wednesday for her home in Stockton after a pleasant visit of seven weeks. She is a cousin of Mrs. Charles Miller of the Standard, a newspaper published in August.

Seven new cottages east of the Santa Fe right of way, between Main and Washington streets, are ready for tenants. The total investment is about $18,000. This does not include the land.

The breast fed baby has the best chance.

Physical fitness is preparedness against disease.

H. Westman, the Standard boiler maker, has near completion one of the finest residences in Albany at the county line. The construction work is under the supervision of Contractor Fagerstrom.

Arrangements have been made with the owner for extensive alterations at the theatre. Additional ground space will be added and the seating capacity increased. Provision for dancing and other entertainments will also be made. In addition another story is to be added to the drug store. This will make an attractive corner at Main and San Pablo.

Health Pointers.

The hand that carries food to the mouth can also carry disease germs.

Health first is the highest form of safety first.

Tuberculosis and poverty go hand in hand.

The U. S. Public Health Service will send a booklet on flies and disease, gratis to all applicants.

Francis J. Heney's principal theme for campaign purposes is: "Why I Am for Wilson?" We should worry.

Secretary of State Jordan is up to his ears in printing amendments and he is cussin' County Clerks all over the State for apathy in forwarding election returns.

Political Note—Altho' it looked like Zeb lost his angora, Zeb still has a good tail-hold, with chances of a "rising market" on the political stock board.—Old Si.

Candidate Hughes made one of the greatest "round the circles" in the history of the country. He is sound on all problems that mean prosperity to the people, and is the people's choice.

Returns from Marin county gave Editor Rugg a majority of 300 over Editor Sharkey in the recent state senator contest, but Contra Costa county Republicans failed to appreciate Rugg's efforts for the party.

Who Are They?

What has become of the man who used to come in and pay his subscription?—Greatville Times.

Why, that easy—he's down below with the candidates who "reniged" on their campaign printing bills.

Theodore Roosevelt sat in a box at Carnegie hall when Mr. Hughes delivered his speech of acceptance and vigorously applauded every telling point.

The colonel repeatedly arose and bowed in response to the cheers for him and the shouts of "Teddy," "Teddy," "Hurrah for Teddy!" and when the meeting adjourned he made the following statement:

"It is an admirable speech, and I wish to call attention to the following points:

"I am particularly pleased with the exposure of the folly, and worse than folly, of Mr. Wilson's Mexican policy and of the way in which this policy has brought humiliation to the United States and disaster to Mexico itself.

"Moreover, I am very glad of the straightforward manner in which Mr. Hughes has shown the ridicule with which Mr. Wilson has covered this nation by the manner in which he allowed foreign powers to gain the impression that, although he used the strongest words in diplomacy, they were not to be taken seriously.

Not Words Which Count.

"As Mr. Hughes said, it is not words, but the strength and resolution behind the words which count. As Mr. Hughes pointed out, there is no doubt that if Mr. Wilson's conduct and action had been such as to make the foreign nations believe that he meant precisely what he said in his 'strict accountability' there would have been no extension of American lives by the slinking of the Luskites.

"When Mr. Hughes uses strong words his record shows that they are always backed by strong deeds, and therefore in the enormous majority of cases the use of strong words renders it unnecessary ever to have recourse to strong deeds.

"Again, Mr. Hughes speaks in characteristically straightforward fashion of the outrages committed on millions of plants, and all men, whether citizens of foreign nations or nominal citizens of our own land, who had in any shape or way abetted or condoned those actions can understand that Mr. Hughes, if president, will protect these domestic American interests and punish offenders against them with the fearlessness and thoroughness that he showed in dealing with the powers of evil at Albany.

Brought Nation to Ignominy.

"Just before coming in to listen to Mr. Hughes' just characterization of Mr. Wilson's failure to protect the lives and property of Americans in Mexico and on the high seas I happened to pick up John Pike's 'Critical Period of American History' and was struck by the following two sentences: 'A government touches the lowest point of ignominy when it confesses its inability to protect the lives and the property of its citizens. A government which has come to this has Cats' Eyes.

As showing how widely the permanently blue eyes of cats differ from other eyes it is noted that immediately the eyes of white cats that are to have permanently blue eyes open they shine bright red in the dark, and neither the ephemeral kitten blue nor any other colored eye does this.

Careful Management.

"My wife seldom criticizes me," said Mr. Meekton.
"Lovely disposition?"
"No. Good discipline. She's afraid that if she keeps noticing me I'll get notions of self importance."—Washington Star.
